VICTORY MEMORIAL SERVICE AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Special Program Given Sunday Morning in Honor of Members Who Were in the World War.

A victory memorial service was held at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning and was largely attended. The service was in honor of the members of the congregation who answered their country's call in the World War and included a sermon by Rev. James Harold More, the church pastor, "The Jewels of the War" together with a special musical program.

The members of the church who served in the World War and in whose honor the special service was held were George Appel, Charles Appel, Leland Bridges, Cullen Barnes, Lieut. Jepson Cadou, Louis Cordes, Cyrrill Charles, Lynn Faulkner, Wilfred Geile, William G. Masters, Ernest Medaefe, Lieut. Harlan Montgomery, Captain Coulter Montgomery, Lieut. Carl Switzer, Lieut. Stanley Switzer and Joseph Swope.

Rev. More's text for the special sermon was taken from Revelations, 19-21. The sermon in part was as follows:

"The apostle John lifting his clear visioned old eyes at the end of road—reports that he sees a new heaven and a new earth." And he further says that the foundations of the Capitol City of the new earth was garnished with emeralds and topaz, sapphires, rubies, and other precious stones. Strangely these are the jewels that are born of fire and igneous reupment. It is significant that the new city should have these stones born of cataclysms in her foundations."

"The elemental fury of volcanic fires and the frenzy of seismic forces have found a vivid parallel among us during these last four and a half years. Meadows of Belgium have dripped in a dew of blood. Fields of France have been scared with blazing thunderbolts. The foundations of the earth have been shaken. We have had our hearts crushed in the cosmic grind. Where are the Jewels? They are here. What are war born jewels that we hope may be the ornaments of peace. I see five jewels war born that are to shine in the foundations of our New City if it is to endure."

"Work. Everybody today feels the sacred call to work. Work is vital. It saved the garden of Eden from total wreck. It will save humankind. It is a precious jewel that we have rediscovered in the heat of the battlefield."

"Money. The blood of our sons has reminted and recoined and revalued every coin in the land. Every man's pocketbook is a new sanctuary where a new shikinah glows. Money has taken on a nobility it never knew. We have learned to spend money for others. This precious war born jewel must be a part of the character of our New City if we are to stabilize society and heal its hurts and unify humanity."

"Sympathy. The fires of hate have surged like corroding flames in men's hearts. But a new sympathy has come into the soul of humanity. Sympathy has remade our geography. We are a nation of sympathizers now."

"Brotherhood. We must have a league of nations to preserve the fruits of victory. It may seem Utopian but we must choose between Utopia and Hell. Out of the war we have learned that it is too light a thing for America to spend herself and herself alone."

"Service. Sympathy is a state of mind. Service is the action that corresponds to it. Men everywhere are saying, what can I do to be saved? Today the question is not: Are you working but are you working for some unselfish purpose. Service has become a precious war born Jewel which is giving a new spirit and a wider range for everybody. Our nation must learn the old time lesson."

Is thy cruse of comfort failing
Rise and share it with another
And thru all years of famine
It shall serve thee and thy brother.

For the heart grows rich in giving
All its wealth is living gain;
Seeds which mildew in the garner
Scattered, fill with gold the plain."

of three rings which she had worn. A black purse containing approximately $160, Wednesday's receipts of the National Refining Company's filling station, where the woman worked, could not be found. It is believed robbery was one of the motives, if not the sole motive, for the murder.

The body of Miss Wilkins was clothed in a black skirt and white waist, and black laced shoes were on her feet, when the body was taken from the cistern.

Miss Wilkins made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Daringer at the Hendricks street address. Mrs. Daringer is her sister. Mr. and Mrs. Daringer were both awake when Miss Wilkins arrived home from work Wednesday night, but they told the police that although they are light sleepers, they were awakened by no outcry or sounds of a struggle during the night. Neighbors on both sides of the Daringer home also said that they heard no unusual sounds.

Daringer said that he was in the bathroom, upstairs, and his wife was in a bedroom when Miss Wilkins came home from work accompanied by a soldier Wednesday night. He said Miss Wilkins came upstairs, opened the door and greeted him with "Hello Bill," and then proceeded to the bedroom, where she greeted Mrs. Daringer. She said to Mrs. Daringer, "Hello, Martha. George is downstairs," and then went back downstairs. This was the last time she was seen alive.

When Daringer arose, about 6 o'clock the next morning and went downstairs, he found the downstairs rooms in great disorder. Chairs were overturned, rugs were thrown against the walls and into the corners of the room and jewelry and spectacles which Miss Wilkins was wearing were found scattered about the rooms and on the front porch.

Daringer said he found the hat which his sister-in-law had worn Wednesday night on a table in the front room, where she had apparently placed it when she first entered the house. The spectacles were found on the floor near a table in the front room and an earring which she had worn was found on the floor in a corner. A rubber hairpin and the other earring were found on the front porch, Daringer said.

Mysterious white marks which can not be removed were found on the cement floor of the front porch. The police can not explain what caused the marks. Daringer said they were not there when he went to bed Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Daringer say that Miss Wilkins had an acquaintance whom they knew as George Kessler, a discharged soldier, formerly in Company L, 10th Infantry, which was stationed at Fort Harrison for a time last year. Miss Wilkins became acquainted with him about three weeks ago, they said. Kessler went to Camp Custer, Mich., with his regiment from Indianapolis last year, where he received his discharge. Miss Wilkins became acquainted with him after he was discharged, Daringer said.

Russell Daringer, Miss Wilkins's nephew, said Kessler had been meeting Miss Wilkins and escorting her home from her work for several nights.

Miss Wilkins worked on the late shift at the filling station every other day, until 9 o'clock at night. It had been the custom to have the employee on the late shift take the day's earnings to her home and return it to the office when she reported on the early shift the next day.

Besides the money belonging to the company and the jewelry missing from Miss Wilkins's person, the murdered woman was the possessor of four $50 Liberty bonds. Daringer said that he was unable to find trace of the bonds among Miss Wilkins's effects and it is probable that the bonds or receipts for them also were stolen. Daringer said he believed the bonds had been placed in a downtown bank by his sister-in-law, but that if Miss Wilkins had the bonds or the receipts in her possession she would carry them in the black hand purse, which is missing.

Besides Mrs. Daringer, Miss Wilkins is survived by two step-sisters, Mrs. Florence Dudenhorffer and Miss Zoe Violet Wilkins. Her father died about four or five years ago, Daringer said, and her mother about twenty-two years ago.

The police began a search for Kessler after learning the details of the case. They sent descriptions of the man broadcast.

That Miss Wilkins was engaged to be married to another soldier, John Gully, who it is said Kessler declared had deserted from the army, is the belief of the detectives.

Miss Wilkins met Gully about a year ago when the 10th United States Infantry was stationed at Fort Harrison. She met Gully while she was a cashier at a dairy lunch on North Illinois street. The acquaintance was at first only casual but she finally permitted him to call at her home, where he became acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Daringer, who said that he was a man of good character, so far as they knew. Later, when the regiment went to Camp Custer, Mich., Gully corresponded with Miss Wilkins his letters finally ceased, they said.

"Lefty" James, twirler for the White Sox, pitched a fine game holding the visiting teams to a few hits. The game at Brownstown was largely attended and was witnessed by a number of local ball fans. RECONSTRUCTION NOW IN FULL SWING

State and Municipal Bodies Cooperating in Effort to Secure Work for Returned Troops.

MANY MEN GO TO FARMS

Big Appropriations Made in Some States to Assist Those Who Are Not Employed.

By United Press

Washington May 31—Reconstruction movements, now in full swing in every state, cover every conceivable angle of the problem of getting the nation back into peace time form, according to a survey begun soon after the armistice by the National Council for Defense.

Governors, mayors, state legislatures, churches, boy scouts, chambers of commerce, volunteer workers and civic bodies are co-operating in plans to insure a square deal for demobilized soldiers and get the factories humming again.

No state failed to figure in the survey.

Alaska, too, is helping, by offering to place 3,000 demobilized soldiers in jobs as teachers, clerks and watchmen.

A great mass of information that fills yards of filing cabinets piled ceiling high has been collected by the defense council describing the state projects. Collected and edited for early publication, the information for some states fills hundreds of pages.

Most projects aim at getting soldiers on the land as farmers and helpers.

For this work the Colorado legislature appropriated $725,000, to be spread over a period of 20 years. The money will be administered by a board which was given $25,000 to be spread over a period of 20 years. The money will be administered by a board which was given $25,000 to spend in assisting soldiers to take advantage of the offer during the first two years. Similar appropriations now being considered by legislatures of other states.

An appropriation of $5,000,000 is provided for loans to demobilized soldiers in a bill introduced into the Iowa legislature. Under the bill no soldier could borrow more than $2,000 and especial provision was made to encourage married soldiers to take advantage of the offer. Reasonable time and terms are provided for return of the funds.

Denver is one of several cities now in the midst of campaigns to "own-your-own-home" and help reopening of building activities.

One form of reconstruction work connected with Americanization projects is exemplified in New Bedford, Mass., where cotton millers organized to teach English to all foreign born residents. Boy scouts are planning to help.

Michigan and Ohio were among the first of the many states that called reconstruction congresses. Women are represented equally with men on a reconstruction board appointed by the governor of Michigan.

Governor Cox stole a move on Ohio's congress by personal letters to 160 mayors, asking their help in creating a $1,000,000 fund to public works to give work to the unemployed.

Twenty-five Ohio cities now have Americanization programs.

Job canvassing for returning doughboys was begun early in New York city where merchants associations combined to canvass all manufacturers and list openings. Oregon's legislature, as one of many after the war measures, passed a bill prohibiting the use, not only in public, but in private schools as well, of any language except English in general instruction. The bill, however, is not intended to prevent the teaching of any needed foreign language.

Pennsylvania's legislature appropriated $50,000,000 for road building to make work for unemployed. Eric, Pa., undertook a building stimulation campaign and in Philadelphia a poster movement was begun to warn against selling of War Savings Stamps below their face value. Brokers, it was found, were encouraging such sales.

The Memphis, Tenn., Chamber of Commerce voted $1,800 to be used in a campaign to get jobs for soldiers.

Texas, among many other reconstruction movements, initiated one intended to "get the children back to school."

Vocational education for crippled soldiers is being under-taken as a public measure in many states including Michigan where all public machinery is behind a statewide canvass to find jobs that crippled soldiers can fill and to list them.

In California, 5,000 community councils have been organized to hunt jobs for soldiers. A $20,000,000 road bond issue is being discussed although several million dollars already is available for this work.

Seven hundred persons joined a club to stimulate foreign trade organized by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

A big Americanization campaign was begun early in Arizona, where 100,000 are foreign born out of a population of 325,000.

Women's reconstruction committees are being organized in some southern states to give especial attention to child welfare.

"Business Men's Envelope," Name Suggested by James Demas, Wins $5.00 Prize.

One hundred and seven replies were entered in the contest for a name for the envelope which the Republican office handles. Out of the one hundred and seven, ten of the best suggestions were selected. Out of the ten the final selection was "B.-M.-E.—Business Men's Envelope." When the envelope with the suggestion was opened it contained the card of James Demas, proprietor of the Sparta, and he is awarded the $5.00 prize offered by The Daily Republican.

The name chosen describes the envelope well as it is distinctly a business envelope. In using the initials the name is short and lends itself admirably to advertising purposes.

We congratulate Mr. Demas on his success and thank all who were interested in sending suggestions for the contest.

B.-M.-E. will continue to be what its name implies the popular Business Men's Envelope as it has been under another name for the last fifteen years.

Monster Religious Pageant Feature of Methodist Centenary Celebration

ON the exposition grounds at Columbus, O., daily between June 20 and July 13 there will be produced, on a scale without precedent in this country, a program of pageantry which will require for its housing the coliseum, seating 8,000 people, a specially constructed mission playhouse, half a score of exhibit buildings, a great oval in front of an amphitheater designed to seat 50,000 people and calling for the services of 20,000 trained participants, already being drilled by hundreds of skilled instructors under the supervision of recognized authorities in missionary, dramatic and musical fields.

The Centenary Pageantry will be presented in six distinct divisions. The schedule includes:

1. A splendid production of the Columbus Centenary Pageant, "The Wayfarer," to be staged in the Coliseum, six characters in this pageant of mine, a woman called Understanding and the Wayfarer, a man who represents that element in modern society, and more especially in the church, which is so bewildered by the industrial and the social upheaval in the revolution throughout the world as to be almost in despair.

"To Wayfarer, as to the many whom you and I know in real life, it seems as if God is either an absentee or utterly impotent to control existing conditions. However, I have held my pageant's text close to the fundamental truths which life teaches and as the Wayfarer journeys with Understanding through the great events of religious history, he discovers that in every age the church has been confronted with seemingly insurmountable difficulties, yet always has triumphed."

Dr. Crowther has built his "Pageant of the Kingdom" around three episodes—the Captivity, the Christ, the Conquest. The time is the present. The immediate occasion is the war in Europe.

Episode 1. The Captivity has three scenes—War, Desolation, Despair and Deliverance.

Episode 2. The Christ is presented in four scenes—Bethlehem, Jerusalem, Calvary, the Resurrection.

Episode 3. The Conquest comprises nine units, staged without intermission: The Great Commission, The Messengers of the Cross, The Gospel Message, The World's Response, Procession of Americans, The Christian League of Nations, The New Jerusalem on Earth, Emmanuel's Coronation.

The Great Commission recalls the direction of Christ for the Conquest of the world through Christianity, portraying "The Messengers of the Cross" are shown Paul, Constantine, Augustine, Wycliffe, Luther, Wesley, Morrison—revered for service in China; Carey—whose name suggests India; Livingstone, inseparable from the church history of Africa; Lincoln and other men who in modern times have served the cause of Christian civilization.

In voicing "The World's Response," that great poem of John Oxenham, "From North and South and East and West They Come," will be given.

While much that is finest in the score of "The Messiah" will be incorporated in the presentation of "The Wayfarer," Professor William J. Kraft of Columbia University, director general of the Centenary music, is writing several choruses for it and selections from both Stainer and Macfarlane have been introduced. Assisting Professor Kraft are Horace Whitehouse of Ohio Wesleyan University and Montgomery Lynch of Seattle. Mr. Lynch will direct the music of "The Wayfarer."

A symphony orchestra of 75 pieces will support an off-stage chorus of 1,000 voices in addition to the 350 singers on the stage.

The musical numbers of the pageant form a feature which by itself would be considered ambition enough for any great production. They include the following:

Bass Solo—"Why Do the Nations?" Handel
Tenor Solo—"Comfort Ye" Handel
Chorus—"Awake, Put on Thy Strength" Handel
Soprano Solo—"Rejoice Greatly, O Daughter of Zion" Handel
Chorus—"Arise, Shine" Handel
Alto and Chorus—"O Thou That Tearest" Handel
Orchestra—"Pastoral Symphony" Handel
Chorus—"Glory to God in the Highest" Handel
Alto Solo—"He Shall Feed His Flock" Handel
Chorus—"Hosanna" Handel
Soprano Solo—"Come Unto Him" Handel
Orchestra Processional—"To Calvary" Handel
Chorus—"Fling Wide the Gates" Handel
Chorus—"Lift Up Your Heads" Handel
Tenor and Chorus—"Ho, Everyone That Thirsteth" Handel
Chorus—"Unto Us a Child is Born" Handel
Chorus—"Hallelujah" Handel

Profit in City Ostriches.

El Paso, Tex.—Fickle fashion has been playing fast and loose with the ostrich industry. A stock company started an ostrich farm in the valley with more than 50 of the long-legged birds. Then the creator of fashions ruled out ostrich plumes. Many birds were sold and the few remaining ones given to the city for exhibition purposes at Washington park. Now plumes are in style once more. Park Commissioner Fisher is planning to buy meat for the wild animals in the park zoo with the proceeds from the sale of plumes.

One Cold Leads to Another.

"A cold never leaves the individual as well as he was before the cold; he must recuperate," writes Prof. Oliver T. Osborne of the Yale School of Medicine in the New York Medical Journal. "Therefore it takes something out of him and does something to him. This is particularly true of young children. A cold always predisposes to another cold."

ANOTHER RISE IN DIAMONDS

London Rough Syndicate Advances the Price to Cutters—Increase Averages About 10 Per Cent.

The following is clipped from a trade journal to advise the retail jewellers in U. S. A. We think the public should know it:

"Diamond importers and cutters of New York received cables last week telling of another increase in the price of diamonds. The news was not entirely unexpected, but the amount of the increase surprised some, as in many sections it was believed that the increase, when it came would be in the vicinity of five per cent. According to the cables received, the increase will average at least double that amount.

"According to the cables received by some concerns the increase was seven per cent., others eight per cent., others nine per cent., but the most authentic information received through some of the largest cutters having houses in Amsterdam and New York was that the average would be about 10 per cent. The other cables, it was explained, probably related to the increase on the particular kinds of goods which the houses receiving them were accustomed to buy."

We have a splendid line of Diamonds that was bought before the rise.

TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES TO RETAIN ROAD SUPERVISION

Matter in Jackson County is Definitely Determined by Commissioners—Conflict in Laws.

The commissioners in regular session this afternoon decided that the township trustees should retain control of the dirt roads in their districts the same as in the past. The new highway law provided that the dirt roads should pass to the supervision of the commissioners, but this was in conflict with the Beardsley law.

Recently the attorney-general held that the unimproved roads should remain in charge of the trustees and the decision was generally accepted as final as a contest would have involved the tangle more deeply and only additional expense would have resulted. The decision of the commissioners is in keeping with the attorney-general's decision.

KILL POTATO BUGS BY EARLY SPRAYING

Do not let Potato Bugs destroy your crop this year, is the warning issued today by County Agent A. E. Murphy.

The beetles are probably waiting in your garden or potato field now and will attack the young plants almost as soon as they appear above ground; in a few days the vines will be practically destroyed.

These pests should be controlled as early as possible before the adult beetles get a chance to lay many eggs or feed to any extent on the leaves.

The young that hatch from these eggs will do more damage even than the adults. As soon as the plants are a few inches high, spray them thoroughly with powdered Arsenate of Lead, at the rate of two pounds to 50 gallons of water, or for the small garden, 10 level teaspoonfuls of the Arsenate to one gallon of water.

Paris Green may be used instead of Lead Arsenate, at the rate of 1 pound to 50 gallons, 1 teaspoonful to a gallon of water, also adding three or four times as much lime as Paris Green to prevent burning of the leaves. Lead Arsenate is preferred because it sticks to the foliage better and is somewhat cheaper.

Spraying should be repeated when necessary, or generally every two weeks through most of the season. If started early the "bugs" will be easier controlled and a smaller number of sprays necessary. If the Arsenate of Lead and Nicotine Sulphate are added to Bordeaux mixture, the one combined spray will control fungous diseases, plant lice, and chewing insects.

PLANT LICE THREATEN POTATOES; STOP 'EM NOW

Indications are favorable in Indiana for an outbreak of plant lice this year. Potato growers, as well as other vegetable producers should be on the watch for small green soft bodied insects usually found on the under side of the young leaves.

Their presence usually causes a rolling under of the leaves, thus serving as a protection for them. Soon the juice is sucked from the leaves, resulting in withering, browning and finally death.

Plant lice multiply so rapidly that any control measures applied must be begun when the first lice appear. Thorough spraying with a nicotine sulphate (Black Leaf 40) solution, taking care to completely cover both sides of the leaves will destroy the lice.

It may be necessary to apply two or three applications ten days apart to completely rid the plants of the pests.

Nicotine sulphate should be used at the rate of 1/2 pint to 50 gallons or one teaspoonful for each gallon. It may be added to Bordeaux with lead arsenate. Such a combined spray controls potato bugs plant lice, leaf hoppers and certain fungous diseases.

Potato Leaf Hopper Killed by Black Leaf 40.

Potato growers should be on the look out for small green fly like leaf hoppers which cause great damage to the potato crop. These hoppers like the plant lice secure their food by sucking the juice from the potato

CARTER GLASS A JERSEY LOVER

Preparing a successful Victory Liberty Loan Campaign was enough to keep Secretary of the Treasury, Carter Glass, quite busy but he managed to find time to spend a few moments with his pets and he is here shown with two fine specimens. They were exhibited at the National Milk and Dairy Farm Exposition, New York, and are owned by S. M. Kaplan, New York.

leaves and stems. As a result of their attack the leaves dry up turn brown and take on a dead appearance.

Most damage is done during hot, dry weather. Often in walking through the fields the adult hoppers will rise and fly ahead in swarms. There are three generations a year, the first one appearing about the time the first potato plants are three or four inches high. Usually becomes most destructive during July and August.

It is not possible to destroy the adults and the winged hoppers hence the necessity of getting them before they reach this stage. This may be done by spraying with nicotine sulphate commonly known as Black Leaf 40, using 1/2 pint to 50 gallons of Bordeaux mixture or one teaspoonful for each gallon. The Bordeaux acts as a repellent.

The first spray should be applied when first signs of the insects appear, usually when the plants are 3 to 4 inches high. An additional spray should be applied every two weeks as long as plants are infected. Thoroughness of application is absolutely essential for any degree of success. To do this both sides of the leaves must be sprayed since the young hoppers must be covered with the nicotine solution to destroy them.

Nicotine sulphate or Black Leaf 40 may be added to Bordeaux mixture and Lead Arsenate. When all three are combined potato bugs, lice and hoppers may be controlled as well as certain fungous diseases.

WHITE TOP AND ITS CONTROL DISCUSSED IN NEW CIRCULAR

"White top is the most common noxious weed of Indiana meadows," says P. J. Pipal, of the Purdue University extension Department. According to Mr. Pipal, the main sources of infestation of this weed is in meadows and other places where the plants are allowed to mature their seeds and scatter them over adjoining areas. He estimates that the damage thus done amounts to millions of dollars annually.

Preventive measures consist in sowing clean seed on a well prepared seed bed while the weed may be controlled by breaking badly infested meadows, moving pastures, roadsides, fence-corners and other areas at least two or three times during the season.

A complete discussion of white top and its control is given by Mr. Pipal in Circular No. 85 just issued by Purdue University. The circular includes a description of the plant, its propagation and spread and measures to be used in controlling it.

Two Useful Garden Hints.

Why not get utility as well as beauty from the vines you plan to have over your back porch, suggests Co. Agt. A. E. Murphy. Rather than planting Morning Glories, use Kentucky Wonder or Lazy Wife climbing beans, allowing them to cling to the lattice work if your porch is supplied with that protection, otherwise supporting the vines on strings or wires stretched from ground to roof. The white sweet-pea like blossoms of these beans will be quite attractive, and further, a plentiful supply of stringless, high quality beans for the home table will be assured throughout the season.

If a few Scarlet Runner bean seeds are planted also, the brilliant scarlet flowers of this variety will add to the beauty of the back porch lattice, though the beans themselves are not as high quality as the other two varieties mentioned.

If the home garden is small, cucumbers may be trained over the backyard fence. Not only may pickles and slicing cucumbers be produced in abundance, but a luxuriant growth of leaves and yellow flowers will cover up the otherwise unsightly fence.

Many of us have limited garden space at our disposal and therefore cannot with ordinary methods grow crops that require as much room as pole beans and cucumbers. But the above suggestions followed out put these vegetables within reach of all of us.

Prune Your Shrubby Right.

If everyone who plants shrubbery about the house would study the time of pruning for each species of shrub much more satisfactory results would be obtained.

The main point to be observed in pruning shrubbery is to do this work after the blooming period.

Flowering shrubs in general may be divided into 2 classes: First, those which produce their blossom buds early in the season and the actual blossoms in late summer. Second those which develop their blossom buds during one summer, but do not produce blossoms from these buds until the following season.

To this first class belongs the Hydrangeas. These shrubs may be pruned during the winter or in very early spring; if pruned in the summer many of the blossom buds would be destroyed.

With the second class, the shrubs that bloom in spring or early summer all cuttings should be avoided until after the blooming period; for if such plants were pruned during the dormant season blossom buds would be destroyed and wood growth instead of flower buds encouraged. If these shrubs are pruned just after the blossoms have fallen, the remainder of the season will be given to healthy growth, and production of flower buds for next season.

Most shrubs should not be pruned severely. First all dead diseased, and broken branches should be removed. Where limbs are too crowded, one may be removed. If the shrub is getting too high select a few of the tallest shoots and cut them back to the ground rather than to clip back the ends. This preserves the natural shape of the shrub which is always to be desired.

Certain shrubs are not valued particularly for their flowers which may be small or inconspicuous. In such a case these shrub may be pruned in the dormant season if it is desired to stimulate the amount of woody growth, or in the summer to keep it within bounds.

Study the pruning of your shrubbery as you do the planting of the vegetable garden or the care of the orchard, and look for more pleasing results. Remember that the hot dry months of summer will soon be here, which calls for a heavy mulch of fine manure to furnish plenty of plant food and hold the moisture about the roots of each plant.

Value of Legumes on Indiana Farms Discussed in Bulletin

"From 25 to 50 percent of the nitrogen and humus of Indiana soils has been used up or lost by the system of cropping they have undergone and it is only by the growing of legumes that these two factors of soil fertility can be most profitably and easily restored to the soil," according to Bulletin No. 226 just issued by the Purdue University Experiment station.

Some of the more important topics concerned with the value of legumes on Indiana farms, such as how legumes increase soil fertility, causes of clover failure, how to succeed with clover and acid tolerant legumes, are fully discussed in the bulletin. In addition to this it contains the results of several experiments which were conducted on Indiana farms where crop rotations containing legumes were used and in all cases it was found that these farms produced crops of both corn and wheat.

Now I am healthier than I ever was in my life, and can recommend it to any woman who suffers as I did."—Mrs. ELIZABETH MAY, R.F.D. No. 1, Columbia, Pa.

The reason Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful in overcoming woman's ills is because it contains the tonic, strengthening properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, which act on the female organism. Women from all parts of the country are continually testifying to its strengthening, curative influence, and the letters which we are constantly publishing from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of this famous root and herb medicine.

Thoughts and Things

The business of living, when boiled down to its clearest essence and all the froth skimmed off, is just a matter of thinking.

Each of us is continually thinking ideas of our own and swapping them for the ideas of others. If there is a famine of outside ideas we shrivel up ourselves. Children with "nobody to play with" are unhappy and unmanageable.

From thinking with our heads to doing with our hands is but a little step and then our thoughts become things.

It is because men of America are so unfettered in their thinking and doing that this country is such a fine place to live in. It is also because these thoughts are freely radiated and spread broadcast, in the distribution of manufactured things and in the distribution of the facts about them (advertising), that this country is such a fine place to live in.

The originator of an idea is not much better off than before he originated it till he gets some one else to absorb it and enjoy it and benefit by it.

The man or woman surrounded by better thoughts and things but who pays not the slightest attention to them is not much better off than the one with "nobody to play with."

The advertisements in the papers are thoughts—telling you about the ideas that other men and women have thought out for your happiness. Read the ads. They are the voices from hundreds of thousands of looms, shops, foundries, studios, laboratories, where millions of minds are turning pleasant thoughts into worth while things for your comfort.

The Wonderful Call When Baby Comes

Like the Blast of Heavenly Trumpet
When Call of Motherhood Is Felt

Of all the most vital times in a woman's life the coming of baby is fraught with the greatest meaning. Care should be exercised to insure that the crisis is passed in safety. Apprehension is avoided by the timely use of Mother's Friend, a preparation of penetrating oils and medicinal ingredients, which renders the muscles, cords, tendons and ligaments pliable, and thus tension is avoided. The usual nervousness, nausea, bearing-down and stretching pains are counteracted and the period is one of calm repose.

The broad, flat abdominal muscles relax with ease, and when baby comes the time at the crisis is less and pain and danger is avoided.

Thousands of women for half a century have used this penetrating external application, prepared especially for expectant mothers, and every woman awaiting the crisis should give nature a helping hand.

Write the Bradfield Regulator Company, Dept. F, Lamar Building, Atlanta, Georgia, for their Motherhood Book, of great value to all women, and obtain a bottle of Mother's Friend from the druggist and begin its application regularly night and morning.

CHAPTER XI.

The Return of the Boat.

The crew hurried over to the port rail. Beyond doubt most of those aboard realized that this had been an expedition of some importance, the culmination of their long wait on the coast, part of some scheme of their chief, in the spoils of which they expected to share. Moreover this boat approaching through the darkness was bringing back their leader, and however else they might feel toward him, the reckless daring, and audacious resourcefulness of Sanchez meant success.

I was made to comprehend all this by the low, muttered utterances of those crowding near me, spoken in nearly every language of the world. Much I could not translate, yet enough reached my ears to convince me of the temper of the crew—their feverish eagerness to be again at sea, under command of a captain whom they both hated and feared—a cruel, cold-blooded monster, yet a genius in crime, and a natural leader of such men as these. Black Sanchez! I listened to their comments, their expectations, with swiftly beating heart. I alone knew what that boat was bringing. What would be the result when the dead body of their leader came up over the rail?

LeVeré shouted an order, and a sudden flare was lighted amidships, the circle of flame illuminating a part of the deck, and spreading out over the wild expanse of water. Scarcely had a minute elapsed before it came sweeping into the radius of light—at first a dim, spectral shadow, scarcely to be recognized; then, almost as suddenly, revealed in all its details—a boat of size, flying toward us under a lug sail, keeling well over, and topping the sea swells like a bird on wing. LeVeré called for men to stand by, the fellows rushing past me to their stations, but, in the fascination of the moment, I failed to move. I could do nothing but stare out across the intervening water, with eyes fastened on that swiftly approaching boat. I must see, I must know the message it brought; what story it held of the tragedy. Manuel held the tiller, with Estada seated beside him, leaning forward, and gesticulating with one hand, as he directed the course. I had never seen these two, yet I knew them beyond a doubt. Mendez and Anderson (at least I supposed these to be the two) were poised at the sail halyards, ready to let the straining sheet down at a run, while Cochose crouched low in the bow, his black hand uplifted, gripping a coil of rope. Their faces were all turned forward, lighted by the flare from our deck, and I felt a shudder of fear run over me—no expression on any countenance spoke of defeat; even the ugly features of the negro beamed with delight.

But was that all? Was that all? Surely not. Forward of the single mast was stowed the chest, while in the open space between the helmsman and the two sailors were stretched two motionless bodies. LeVeré, gripping a stay-rope, and leaning well out, hailed in Spanish.

"Ahoy, the boat! You can make it?" "Ay!" came back Estada's voice. "Stand by to fend us off. Call all hands, and break anchor as soon as we are aboard."

"Very well, sir. Where is Captain Sanchez?"

Estada pointed downward in swift, expressive gesture.

"Here at my feet—badly hurt, but will recover. Send two men down to help when we make fast. Now, Cochose—let go of your rope; watch out above!"

I stood, gripping hard at the rail, and staring down at the scene below, as the men in the boat made fast. I felt paralyzed, and helpless, unable to move. I had no business to remain there; every prospect of security depended on my joining the crew. Yet only one thought gripped me—Sanchez was not dead! And that other body? That of Dorothy Fairfax, without doubt, yet certainly not lifeless. If their prisoner was the girl—and who else could it be?—she remained alive, helplessly bound to prevent either struggle, or outcry, and destined to a fate far worse than death.

My own life hung in the balance—nay, rather, my doom was already sealed. There seemingly was but one chance for escape left—that was to drop silently overboard. God, no! that would be the craven act of a coward. Better far to stay, and kill, or even be killed, than to be forever cursed by my own conscience.

The fellows sent down from the main chains to the boat brought the injured captain up first. This required the services of three men, his body hanging limp between them, his upturned face showing ghastly in the flaming of the torch thrust out over the rail. To every appearance it was apparently a corpse they handled, except for their tenderness, and a single groan to which the white lips gave utterance, when one of the bearers slipped, wrenching the wounded body with a sharp pang of pain. Once safely on deck, the three bore him across to the after cabin and disappeared down the steps.

Estada had already swung himself up into the chains, while Anderson and Mendez were lifting the girl to her feet, and rather roughly urging her forward. Her eyes reflected all the unutterable horror which for the moment dominated her mind, while her loosened hair, disarranged by struggle, only served to intensify the pallor of her face.

"Hustle her along lively, boys," shouted back Estada coarsely. "If she won't move, give her a shove. Then tie her up again, and take the turn of a rope 'round her. What do you think this is—a queen's reception? Move lively, señorita," in mock sarcasm.

Her gaze settled on him, where he hung far out, grasping a backstay, watching the movements below, and her slender form straightened as by the acquisition of new strength.

"If these creatures will take their hands off me," she said, using their tongue without a tremor in the clear voice. "I can easily go up alone. What is it you are so afraid of—a woman?"

The expression of Estada's face promised an outburst of profanity, but, instead of giving it utterance, he lifted his cap in a sudden pretense of gallantry.

"Your pardon, señorita," he said in a tone of mockery. "If you have come to your senses at last, it is well. Leave her alone, men. Now, my beauty, I am taking you to my own word—a step, and then the protection of my hand. We welcome you, as a guest aboard."

A moment and she had attained the deck. Estada chose to continue playing the fool.

"Thanks, señorita—thanks," he began softly, and again bowing before her, cap in hand. "We greet you with due honor aboard the Namur—"

"Enough of that, you coward, you murderer," she broke in coldly. "Do not touch nor speak to me."

She turned her back on him, thus coming face to face with LeVeré, who stood enjoying the scene, a wide grin on his dark face, revealing a row of white teeth under a jet-black mustache.

"You, sir—you are an officer?"

"I have charge of the deck."

"Then where am I to go?"

The mulatto, surprised by the sudden question, glanced inquiringly toward Estada, who had already completely lost his sense of humor.

"Go!" the latter growled. "Why send the wench below. I'll see to her later, and teach her who is the master here. Off with her now, but be back quickly." He leaned over the rail, sending his gruff voice below. "Send up that chest, you men. Hook on the boat, Manuel, and let her drag; we must get out of here in a hurry. All ready, aloft?"

"Ay, ay, sir."

"Then sheet home; how is it forward?"

"Both anchors apeak, sir."

"Smartly done—hard down with your helm there! That's it; now let her play off slowly."

He caught sight of me. All the savage brutality of his nature had been brought to the surface by Dorothy's stinging words, and he sought now some fit opportunity to give it vent. Before I could move, he had gripped me by the collar, and swung me about, so that the light streaming out from the cabin fell directly on my face.

"What the devil are you doing, loafing aft here? I've seen you hanging about for ten minutes, never lifting a hand. Who are you anyhow?"

"Joe Gates, sir."

"Gates—another damned Englishman! How did you ever get aboard here?"

It was the returning LeVeré who made explanation before I could reply.

"Manuel brought him on board last night. Picked him up drunk ashore."

"I see. Well now, do you happen to have any idea who I am, Gates?"

"No, sir—only that you are one of the officers."

"I am the first officer, and in command at present. Pedro Estada is my name. Now, you damned English whelp, remember that!"

Before I even suspected what was coming, his unexpected action as swift as the leap of a poised tiger, he struck me fairly between the eyes with the butt of a pistol, and I went down sprawling onto the deck. For a moment I seemed, in spite of the viciousness of the blow, to retain a spark of consciousness, for I knew he kicked me savagely with his heavy sea boots; I felt the pain, and even heard the words, and curses, accompanying each brutal stroke.

"You drunken dog! You whelp of a sea wolf! You English cur! Take that—damn you! And that! You'll not forget me for awhile. That's it—squirm. I like to see it. When you wake up again, you'll remember Pedro Estada. How did that feel, you grunting pig? Here, LeVeré, Manuel, throw this sot into the fore-castle. Curse you, here is one more to jog your memory."

The heavy, iron-shod boot landed full in my face, and every sensation left me as I sank limply back, bloody and unconscious.

MORE RED BLOOD AND STEADIER NERVES FOR RUN DOWN PEOPLE

The World Demands, Strong, Vigorous,
Keen-Minded, Men and Women

It has been said of Americans that they work their habits over-time.

Many become nervous and inefficient by overwork.

By worry, despondency, social affairs, robbing brain and body of needed rest; excessive use of tobacco, indulgence in strong alcoholic drink—excesses of every kind that burn up the vital powers so necessary in these trying times to make both men and women fit to be of help to themselves and others.

It is time to be temperate in all things. The man or woman with impaired nerves caused by impoverished blood lacks vigor, the ambition, the endurance and the keen mind of those who avoid excesses.

Timidity, despondency, fear, trembling hands, want of confidence and even cowardliness, are due in a large measure to abused nerves.

People with plenty of red blood corpuscles and strong, healthy nerves have no desire to shirk work and lean on others for guidance and support. There is hardly a nerve-shattered man or woman (unless of an organic disease) in America today who cannot become alert and clear in mind; vigorous and energetic in body in a very few weeks and at trifling cost.

To become strong and ambitious, to feel that work is not drudgery; to have steady nerves, abundance of red blood and power of endurance; to be not only a man but a man now go, a superman, you must take seven tablets of Bio-feren every day for seven days—and take them faithfully.

Take two after each meal and one at bedtime and after seven days take one only after meal until the supply is exhausted.

Then if you feel that any claim made in this special notice is untrue—if your nerves are not twice as steady as before; if you do not feel ambitious, more vigorous and keen-minded, the pharmacist who dispensed the tablets to you will gladly hand you back just what you paid for them.

Bio-feren is without doubt the grandest remedy for nervous, rundown, weak, anemic men and women ever offered direct through druggists and is not at all expensive. All druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand—sell many packages.

ATTEMPT MADE TO STEAL GEORGE STEINKAMP'S CAR.

Stranger Starts to Get in Automobile When he Discovers Wife of Owner Standing Opposite Car.

An attempt was made by a stranger to steal a touring car belonging to George Steinkamp, Jr., while it was standing in front of his residence on South Walnut street Sunday night about 10 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Steinkamp had just returned after a ride and Mr. Steinkamp had gone into the house. Mrs. Steinkamp was taking some articles out of the car and was standing on the opposite side from the sidewalk and on account of the darkness could not be plainly seen. The stranger came walking along the sidewalk and when he arrived along the side of the automobile stopped and looked around after which he walked toward the machine and started to get in when he discovered Mrs. Steinkamp. He then turned and walked away rapidly.

Mrs. Steinkamp told her husband of the occurrence and the stranger was seen to pass the house a few minutes later. About 10:30 Mr. Steinkamp started to put the car in the garage and noticed that the stranger was standing close by and it is his opinion that he intended to slip in the building and hide until the owner left. However he was discovered by Mr. Steinkamp who asked him what he wanted there and as a result the stranger ran. Mr. Steinkamp gave chase for a short distance but was unable to apprehend the man and returned home and notified the police. The police made an investigation but were unable to locate the man.
